Meet Irish Building Regulation Requirements

Ventilation Validation Services

Domestic Ventilation Systems must be designed and commissioned to provide adequate and effective means of ventilation to satisfy the minimum requirements of the Technical Guidance Document (TGD) Part-F of the Irish Building Regulations.

What are the benefits?

For consumers, the benefits of ventilation validation are far-reaching in terms of energy efficiency improvements of the dwellings and higher levels of indoor air quality, which provide enhanced comfort and health benefits to the occupant. Homeowners can be reassured that, at the time of validation, their ventilation system is designed and installed to provide minimum ventilation rates required under TGD Part-F of the building regulations.

Quality Management System: ISO/IEC/EN 17025:2017. General requirements for the competence of testing and calibration laboratories.

NSAI Ventilation Validation Registration Scheme: I.S. EN 14134:2019: Ventilation for buildings - Performance measurement and checks for residential ventilation systems.
